

TWO-DAY WORKSHOP

ORGANIZATIONAL STRATEGIC DECISION MAKING

Who is responsible for Organizational Strategic Decision Making?

What if there was a way we could show you how to effectively involve your board or city council, risk manager, and supervisors to solve every critical issue within your organization?

We're here to inform you that there is a way, and that is Organizational Strategic Decision Making (OSDM). It's the reason why financial auditors internationally have determined that an organization's long-term health can be improved through OSDM, which is the foundation of Enterprise Risk Management (ERM). Boards and management have a fiduciary responsibility to implement this process as it is the accepted standard of prudence within the US and internationally as ISO 31000 standards.

Have you addressed the following critical issues in your organization?

- How to achieve organizational objectives
- Business continuation plan for key personnel
- Plan for predictable catastrophic incidents
- Transition from compliance based safety to building a positive safety culture
- Every financial audit requires a statement on ERM within your organization

Have you taken into account the following considerations?

- Proactive management of organizational risk
- Preparation process for the next generation of leaders
- This is an international management standard, ISO 31000, that is not going away

By institutionalizing ERM, which is scalable to any organizational size, you will empower everyone in your organization to identify risk.

How do you learn more about ERM?

1. Free 40-minute mission critical ERM Principles webinar streaming available anytime @ csdpool.com/erm/
2. The CSD Pool Administration is working with Colorado PRIMA, SDA, and other state associations to host a two-day workshop on how you can implement ERM in your organization

This 2-day Workshop will be presented by PRIMA's ERM national training faculty, Wendel Bosen and Dorothy Gjerdrum on April 12 and 13, and will be held in Lakewood, Colorado at West Metro Fire Rescue Training Facility.

The cost is $50 for CSD Pool members, $500 for sponsor organizations, and $600 for all other participants. A continental breakfast and lunch will be provided for attendees on both days.
